

Behavioral Safety Consultancy >>

Research suggests that between 80 and 98% of accidents are caused or triggered by the unsafe acts of people. It is therefore apparent that any organisation which wishes to minimise accidents must have a thought out approach to this topic.

There are a range of behavioral change programs available. But not every programme will be right for you. TOWER can provide a range of services to help your business understand and implement the right behavioral safety strategies giving the best chance of achieving your health and safety ambitions.

All TOWER's consultancy service begin with an initial free consultation, from which a detailed proposal out your particular requirements and how we will address them. This ensures our clients only pay for what they need.

Typical services include

- Advising on the suitability of Behavioural Safety for the business.
- Advising on techniques, necessary steps to implementation.
- Identifying blockers and opportunities.
- Facilitating reviews of policy and arrangements in line with behavioural safety approach.
- Facilitating workshops with employee/Union groups.
- Establishing behavioural business and project KPI's.
- Behavioural inspection and audit programmes.
